1. The first step in the inductive Bible study process is to read the text carefully and prayerfully. This involves reading the text slowly and thoughtfully, paying attention to the words and the context. This step is essential for understanding the meaning of the text and for identifying the main points and themes. The second step is to observe the text closely, looking for key words, phrases, and sentences that stand out. This involves asking questions of the text and trying to understand what the author is saying. The third step is to interpret the text, which involves applying the text to your own life and understanding its meaning in the context of the Bible as a whole. This step is often the most challenging, as it requires a deep understanding of the Bible and a willingness to let the text speak to you. The fourth step is to apply the text, which involves putting the text into practice in your life. This is the final step in the inductive Bible study process, and it is the one that makes the study truly transformative. The key to effective, fruitful inductive Bible study is personal involvement and learning how to carefully, prayerfully observe... not sitting by a pond, but sitting at the feet of Jesus, allowing the Spirit of Christ to lead you into all truth (cp Lk 10:38-42).
